Study of the Apache OpenDAL platform in order to understand the different interfaces, programming languages, abstractions, and services supported.

Design and implementation of a prototype that, using the previous platform, allows transparent, multi-backend storage solutions to be built. Evaluation of the prototype to be developed.

The tasks described in this working plan demand the application and development of concepts and techniques in the area of Software Engineering which are usually introduced in curricular units included in the curricula of the Integrated MSc in Informatics Engineering or the MSc in Informatics Engineering studies.
